The little bathroom

written and directed by Bruno Cappagli with Giovanni Boccomino and Luciano Cendou light project and technical execution by Alex Bertacchi costumes by Tanja Eick set design by Barbara Burgio the girl's voice is of Bianca Solazzo

Two men eagerly wait for their turn outside a public toilet. Tired for all the waiting, they decide – out of curiosity – to go into a toilet for children only... A sort of enchantment, a weird game of proportions and dimensions, brings the two characters inside a huge bathroom, way bigger than them, so big that the audience sees them as tall as children. At the beginning, though astonished and uncomfortable, they try to keep a “grown-ups” behaviour, pretending there is no problem in washing their hands in a three-metre sink. But then, almost unaware of it, they rediscover a playful attitude and enjoy themselves with enormous objects.

A theatrical game where what is big becomes small as compared to what is huge. A funny and unusual way to put children and grown-ups together.
